Dear Prime Minister Modi,
dear Minister Irani, dear Minister Gehlot,

With this letter we, the Members of Parliament, would like to express our utmost concern regarding the rising number of grave incidents of rape and sexual violence against Dalit women and girls, which have been taking place in India over the last few years. The horrific crime of gang rape and physical attack committed in Hathras on 14 September 2020 resulted in the death of a young Dalit woman. The case drew widespread outrage globally and is sadly not an isolated incident. Rather, the Hathras case represents a worrying trend of rapes against women and girls in India, particularly against marginalized communities, who face additional atrocities and are at increased risk of sexual violence.

We are profoundly worried about the downplaying by key State officials of the grave criminal nature of sexual violence against women and girls, particularly when committed against marginalized communities. In the Hathras case, for instance, the Uttar Pradesh (UP) authorities initially denied that the rape took place, they cremated the body of the victim without the consent of the family, and arrested journalists and civil society activists protesting against these actions or reporting on the case. Such procedure contributes to the prevailing culture of impunity for such crimes.

As per the National Crime Records Bureau's (NCRB) report of 2018, UP tops the list of number of crimes committed against Dalits, including Dalit women. The state has also recorded the maximum number of cases of rape (526), attempt to rape (48), incidences of abduction of Dalit women (381), and incidences of assault (711) in 2018 under the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) (SC/ST [PoA]) Act. 50766 cases pending in UP which makes the pendency rate to be 95.3%.

Failure to adequately address cases of sexual violence and to improve access to justice complicates our current and future relations, as we are committed to achieving the Sustainable Development Goals and aligning with our shared international human rights commitments. Respect for human rights and rule of law requires strong actions by the Indian government, too. We would wish such actions to be implemented at the highest level to address in particular impunity for crimes of sexual violence against Dalit women and girls, and to effectively enforce and implement existing laws on sexual violence and caste-based atrocities.

We may also add that India's human rights situation, particularly women's rights, are critically considered by international bodies, such as the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women, mandate holders of the UN Special Procedures as well as within the UPR mechanism.

We would like to consider India our partner in a joint effort for a better world. A world that protects human rights, achieves equality for women and girls and promotes justice for all. Sexual violence should not be tolerated irrespective of which community the victim belongs to.

Yours sincerely,
